

Permitting the use of cellular phones on aircraft would be a major air safety disaster. People addicted to the use of cell phones use them nonstop and they always speak in a loud voice. Right now air travel is like traveling with caged animals. No room, no space, no food, a glass of wine priced at $5, maybe a movie, no leg room, no pillows, no blankets, crying babies. It takes every bit of self discipline to survive and keep calm. Close your eyes and imagine a flight with one or more people per room on a cell phone. People are going to snap. And, "no", I do not want to have to wear ear plugs.

Carolyn E. Jones